

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to acidified starch products having reduced acid flavors and microbiological stability, and to methods for making those products. In accordance with the invention, an acidified starch product is prepared by preparing a dough and contacting the dough with an effective amount of high intensity 10 sweetener and food grade acid.